Minor bug fixes.MEGADETH frontman Dave Mustaine says the band would not hesitate to re-record "Chant To Joy" if it were necessary. "If we had to go in and re-record it, we'd do it," he told U.K.'s Metal Hammer magazine. "Not because we're not fans of it, but because we have a strong feeling about it. "In a way, the song's not really metal, and I'm not sure if it should be metal. But I like it. That's all that matters. I just know that it was part of our lives back then, and I'm happy with it, and I'm happy to have been part of it, and I'm happy with it." The magazine points out that the "Chant To Joy" song was first heard during "Rust In Peace" sessions in 1992. It was later used for the release of MEGADETH's 1995 album "Rust In Peace", and it was the title track to their follow-up, "The World Needs A Hero", in 1997. The song was placed on the band's 1999 release "Count Your Blessings", and MEGADETH released a remixed version of the track as a single in 2006. A live version appears on the DVD "Live Bites" (2009). Mustaine said the "Chant To Joy" track was written about a girl who was serving in the U.S. military. He wrote: "At the time I wrote that, I was dating a girl who was serving in the U.S. military. And I didn't understand why, because I knew how her life was. "I started to really wonder about it, and I started to think about the whole world, and the people that had to go out and protect everybody. "It's
